RADAR is an approach to managing pain that is adopted at this hospital.

We use this approach to ensure you receive the best care and most appropriate pain relief following surgery.

Prior to your operation, a member of the team will discuss your pain relief with you and put together a postoperative pain management plan. Following your operation please let a member of staff know if you are experiencing an unexpected level of discomfort.

At this hospital we consider pain management to be everybody's responsibility, including all staff and you as the patient.
